

Catherine will graduate December 2017 from the Yale University Physician Associate Program. She is currently the SAAPA representative for her class at Yale. Prior to PA school, she worked as a medical assistant in orthopaedics and as an HIV Biochemistry fellow at NIH in Washington, DC. She interned at Children's National Medical Center examining sickle cell disease and now continues to focus on research in pediatrics analyzing how dialysis modalities change health related quality of life. Catherine currently lives in New Haven, CT. She enjoys playing tennis and golf, cooking, and traveling with her partner.